Narrative Art, among the most significant artistic movements born from the revolutionary culture of the '60s, is a form of expression typical of the '70s, which arose from the combination of two main components: photography and text.

Through these media - complementary and inseparable - these artists tells everyday stories, mundane and vain matters, conferring to these concepts a new dignity.

Photography seizes and crystallizes the moment stressing the concept of memory and of recovery of the evanescent and transient. Text, treated as the attachment of photographic images, lets the artists create a narrative beyond the visual field, being able to engage the viewer through mental relationships .

The exhibition will be open until Deceber 14th 2013.
